

~Branching Out...Again~

"At night God's song is with me, a prayer to the God of my life." ~Psalm 42:8

Dear Members and Friends,

A three-quarters moon rose in the east, surprisingly radiant. It was June. My three ladies were asleep, so I ventured out onto the front porch to gaze at it. The light was otherworldly. Its silvery glow transfigured all the living world into something luminous, a fantasyland modeled only vaguely on the place I know by day. Like most front yards, ours is mostly ornamental and rarely visited, except to be mowed. But by the light of the moon, an ordinary yard becomes a brilliant place, a place of endless possibility. I followed the moonlight down off the porch and out into parts of my property where I never go after dark. By moonlight, I drifted over to the area we call "the side field." For all I know, satyrs dance there by night; I've never checked. There's nothing to see or do over there after dark. A clothesline, a vegetable garden, a rotting split-rail fence. It's true that the borders are porous over in that direction. Neighborhood dogs (and their owners) lay claim to our side field. But in reality, it belongs to us just as much as the room where I sleep each night. It's as much ours as the little spot with the recliner and lamp where I spend so many leisure hours, reading. By rights, I could set a folding chair out in the field at 3:00 a.m. to read a book by flashlight. By rights, I could sleep in a tent out there in the middle of January. But I don't. With nightfall—and in the winter—I withdraw indoors, and the field becomes a little less mine. It's the after-hours domain of "Grimalkin," the fierce old feral cat who lives in the cellar of our ramshackle summer kitchen. Darkness transforms the field into a wild country of roaming deer, and local dogs, and garden tools left laying treacherously underfoot. But it wasn't wild on that night. The moon had visited it with a serene beauty that only the moon can give. On that night, the moon-glow caused oak leaves to shine like the riffing water of a midnight brook. And as I wandered around the side field by the light of the moon, I wondered a little sadly, "How have I allowed darkness and wintertime to take this lovely place away from me?"

The cold and the dark cause us to hunker down and turn inward. They chase us out of places that are rightfully ours and send us to hover like moths around electric lights in climate-controlled rooms. May, for me, is a month of constant outdoor labor: putting in the garden, mowing, hacking away at wild vines (the "unholy trinity" of poison ivy, Virginia creeper, and wild grapevine—which threaten to engulf modern civilization and consume everything ever planted or built by human hands). It's only in full summer that I step back and gaze upon my small domain to see not a toilsome to-do-list, but a beautiful place for living, a thing of joy. I love the way summertime causes us to branch out into ourselves once again, reclaiming the fullness of our life with all its places and moods.

"Branching Out" was the theme of our recent capital campaign, and it was appropriate! It feels like summertime at Bower Hill Church in more ways than one. With ever-growing numbers of children in the Christian Education program, we are expanding into parts of our building that sat more or less unoccupied for years. The chapel—which saw only four Advent services per year, plus the occasional funeral—is now being prepared for weekly junior church. Long-neglected classrooms are being reclaimed for Sunday school. Due to the increasing number of small children in our midst, we've had to move the nursery into a larger room—the old library. Our whole campus is becoming a tool for mission; we've planted a "Boaz vegetable garden" in a once-disused yard! The few classrooms that still don't have a class are home (literally) to Family Promise. Today, we see our church expanding, branching out, "reclaiming the fullness of our life." It's an exciting time to be Bower Hill Church.

There's a larger lesson to be learned here, and it is this: No season lasts forever. There was once a season of "hunkering down" in this place, but by God's grace a new day has dawned over us. In the same way, the darkness and cold that you may face today is not eternal. It all passes, as do our bright summers. That's why my favorite name for God is "Eternal One," which I borrow from the French. God alone is eternal, but Christ's joy keeps cycling back around for all of us time-bound humans.

Happy Summer to You,

~Brian

ARE YOU WILLING TO GIVE A RIDE?

The deacons are compiling a list of people who might be willing to give rides to church. There are several people who do not drive who might come to church if they had a ride. If you would be willing to offer rides, please contact Kate Junker at: katejunker@aol.com.

FOOD DRIVE: EVERY SECOND SUNDAY EACH MONTH

Wallace Food Pantry collects food items that they will need to provide supplies to all their client families. The primary need is for dry cereal. Hearty soups and stews, peanut butter and baby foods are also always welcome. Please note that food insecure families are often taxed when school lets out and subsidized school food programs end. Now would be a good time to double up on breakfast and lunch offerings for kids home from school!

PITTSBURGH HISTORY & LANDMARKS AND OUR STEEPLE (From Mary Good)

Did you see the Pittsburgh History & Landmarks Foundation sign in the front lawn during our steeple renovation? Did you wonder how they got involved with our project? It began in September 2012 when my husband Paul saw an article in the paper about a workshop for their Historic Religious Properties Program. "That's right up your alley. You should go." So I registered last minute and went the next day.

PHLF understands the vital role of religious properties in offering social services that benefit the surrounding community. And they realize the financial challenges of maintaining those buildings. To be eligible for the grant, I needed to prove that BHCC: (1) was in an architecturally-significant building at least 50 years old (just made it!), (2) had an active congregation, (3) was capable of raising matching funds, (4) offered social services that benefit the surrounding community (DART and the Brailleists wrote supporting letters), and (5) would be willing to accept a PHLF "Historic Landmark" plaque if offered.

I also needed to submit two proposals from certified contractors. Thankfully, we on the Building & Grounds Committee already had those. Alan Hohlfelder took the required digital photos of the damage for me to include. All documents were ready for the November 2012 deadline.

BHCC and ten other congregations were each awarded $7,000.00. While the grant stipulated that the work must be completed in 2013, the extreme winter weather and the additional repair work complicated the time-line. PHLF granted my two requests for extensions. After proving that we had paid the contractor in full and after the Foundation's construction manager had inspected the completed work, we received our grant check in May.

REPORT FROM THE CAPITAL CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Now that the fundraising part of the campaign has created this wonderful pool of money to help improve the BHCC building, it's important that we are good stewards of the money pledged and collected. The Capital Campaign Committee is responsible for that.

As of June 2, $247,790 has been received in cash or capital asset gifts. From that money the steeple loan has been repaid and the steeple project completed. It will be recommended to Session at the June meeting that 10% of the money raised be transferred to the Mission Committee for disbursement to our mission agencies.

The next project is the reconstruction of the playground. Plans have been received and reviewed, and construction should begin shortly. There are sufficient funds in the Campaign Fund to complete this project.

Future projects will be prioritized based on funds collected and what was promised to the congregation during the campaign. It is not the committee's intent to micromanage the actual spending but rather rely on the individual Session committees to make recommendations, working within the commitments made to the congregation during the capital campaign.

The Capital Campaign Committee will report to session on a monthly basis. Watch the newsletter for updates or ask one of the committee members: Kirsten Bruder, Lynn Foltz, DJ Geis, Rick Jacobs, Tim Lease, Gordon Mitchell, Jason Rising, Jason Robosky, or Margaret Zabo.

LIBRARY UPDATE

The church library has moved to Room 101, across from the office. It is the first room on the right as you enter the hallway from the Portico.

Step 1 is complete – all the books have been moved and most are on the shelves. A special thank-you is extended to Boy Scout Troop 28 and Cub Scout Pack 28, for their willingness and strength to move 40+ boxes of library books from one room of the church downstairs to another room. We appreciate your help!

Step 2 will continue over the next few months. Irrelevant materials will be removed and books will be checked for order.

If you are looking for a book, check out the online catalog on the BHCC web page!

WORSHIP & MUSIC COMMITTEE INVITATION From Jason Robosky

When I joined BHCC, I took it for granted that everything operated smoothly behind the scenes: the worship service runs without a hitch, the church grounds are kept safe and attractive, there are always plenty of mission and fellowship activities, and there are funds perfectly allocated to keep everything running. But these things don't just happen passively. Active committees are the heart-beat of our church family that keeps us vibrant, engaged, and successful.

To remain strong, these committees rely on church members to dedicate their energies in whatever capacity they can. I'd like to extend an open invitation to join the Music & Worship Committee. This committee is charged with the oversight of all aspects of the worship life of BHCC including communion preparation and servers, ushers and greeters, lectors, acolytes, candles and banners, sound system and listening device operation, wedding coordination, defibrillator maintenance, printed pew material upkeep, and music program enrichment.

Please consider becoming involved. If you are interested in contributing your input and talent to any of these areas, please contact me about joining the committee or participating in some aspect of our oversight. Ideas for improvement are always welcome and necessary. The Worship & Music Committee meets the first Thursday of every month at 7:00 PM in the Conference Room. I look forward to seeing you there!

NEW ROOM NUMBERS AT BHCC

Have you noticed the new, black numbers above the doorways at BHCC? Rooms are now marked by number on our new map, on the church calendar and above the doors. This makes our facility easier to navigate for visitors and new members, and also by public safety officers in case of emergency.

Pick up a new map in the office!

Did you know that Christian Education has a Vision Team? This team of people has been meeting for the past several months to evaluate all the children's programming at Bower Hill. The Vision Team is recommending the following changes to Sunday school for 2014-2015:

Nursery care will be offered for newborn through 2-year-olds. They will meet in the nursery before worship begins.

In the Fall, the following age groups will be dismissed to their class after the Time With Children:

Preschool to 2nd grade will meet in one room together. The curriculum will change to Children & Worship, which is a spiritual formation approach that presents a joyful way for children to worship God.

It invites children and adults to experience the wonder and mystery of God through a unique storytelling format and multi-sensory materials.

This method is easier to understand when it is presented to parents. We will transform the chapel into a worship center for the kids. Marla will be the story teller in the room for the first year. One or two room helpers will be needed each Sunday. These helpers can rotate every week. The Vision Team hopes to invite the congregation to an open house to see the new Worship Center and present a story in August.

3rd-4th grade will learn more in-depth lessons about people in the Bible. Marla is now currently looking for material. Teachers will be asked to teach an entire unit on a person in the Bible for two to four weeks, depending on the curriculum. Teachers will rotate after the completion of a unit.

The biggest change will be for our 5th and 6th graders. This group will attend the entire worship service and then during the second hour they will meet with Marla and Amy Grella. This group will learn more about how to put their faith in action in their everyday life.

If you have any questions about these changes please feel free to contact one of the Vision Team members: Betsy Hohlfelder, Amy Grella, Marla Kemmler, Kiri Rising, and Rich Salvante.
